Grim Reaper Calls Pioneer

Business houses were closed in Carmel while the funeral services for Mrs. Agnes D. Signor were being held last Tuesday.

Mrs. Signor's death came as a shock to many hearts, in spite of the fact that she had been very ill for weeks. We should have known that her age was against her, but we have known her as always young, and it is impossible to think of her in any terms but those of life.

Her gallant soul allowed no place to fear, uncertainty or regret. She had vision and followed it; she had courage and used it; she had love and gave it, and today there is no member of our community who does not count himself her friend.

As owner and manager of the Hotel La Playa, Mrs. Signor exerted a wide personal influence. Her hopes and ambitions were for Carmel and the Monterey Peninsula. The money which passed through her hands was spent here. Many prominent people from all parts of America became first her guests, then property holders and citizens of Carmel. Mrs. Signor made many friends in Monterey and Pacific Grove also, and to all who witnessed her successful struggle during her later years, the following facts about her earlier life will be of interest:

Mrs. Signor was a native of Girvan, Scotland. Her early life was spent on the Atlantic coast. As a young woman she was principal of a grammar school in Lawrence, Mass. Later she engaged in the hotel business with a brother. She made and lost a large fortune before coming to California, but her hardest struggle took place during the first years of her stay in Carmel. She came here immediately after the San Francisco earthquake, in 1908, practically without health or money, and began work in a very small way. Gradually, step by step, with indomitable courage, the battle was won, until, as owner and manager of the Hotel La Playa and of La Playa Rancho, she saw her dream realized.

Mrs. Signor leaves a nephew, Dr. Frederick S. McKay residing in New York City, and a niece, Miss Helen Lawson of Lawrence, Mass., both of whom have made a trip to Carmel to be with her within the past year. Mrs. Helen Godwin Mueth, also a niece, and her two sons, William Harrison Godwin and Frederick McKay Godwin, have recently made La Playa their home and were with Mrs. Signor during her last illness.

The services took place in the little Pacific Grove Cemetery, which Mrs. Signor loved. The Rev. G. M. Cutting, from Del Monte Chapel, officiated. There were many beautiful floral offerings, with a large attendance of friends.

Missiontown Players Open in Season of Repertoire at San Jose

Appreciative of the artistry of David B. Gally as playwright and actor and his ability to present a finished production, San Jose society and club leaders have inaugurated a season of little theatre plays by the Missiontown Players in the gray room of the Hotel Vendome.

Names of over one hundred and fifty subscribers for the season were published in the San Jose papers after the initial performance recently, together with flattering criticisms by conservative writers, including Prof. Clarence Urmy, who devoted nearly a column of praise to the production at the T. & D. Theatre in February, which called for a repetition of the three plays last weeks. The season will continue for ten weeks.

With simple backgrounds, inner prosceniums and jeweled settings, Mr. Gally has made his plays stand as the necleus of a new genre in dramatic art just beginning to be sought in San Jose. Not only its literary and artistic cults but also the business men realize the value of the little theatre movement and are supporting it.

For the periods between the fort nightly San Jose presentations, plans are under way for performances in Palo Alto, Gilroy, San Francisco, Berkeley, Sacramento, Fresno and other cities.

Critical Judgment of "High Justice"

By Frank Arthur French

If Oscar Wilde had succeeded in reviving the lost art of lying, this critique could never have been born. But truth has been requested concerning the premier presentation of "High Justice," a drama in four acts, by Mae Harris Anson of Carmel, and produced by Herbert Heron with Carmel players for the benefit of the Little Theatre at Arts and Crafts hall last Friday and Saturday nights. It requires no knowledge of anything to give adverse criticism or denounce any work of art. Values must be measured by cosmic weights, and constructive criticism, based on technical premises, not provincial taste, is for those only big enough to profit by it. It is not the mistakes we make that count, but what we make of them.

Herbert Heron's long experience in producing Forest Theatre plays gave him inspiration in staging the drama with very little change of setting, and the scenery, built by Dr. Alfred Burton, James Worthington, Cornelius Botke and Austin James was both artistic, simple and suggestive of the time and place indicated. "High Justice" was arranged from a book by Stanley Weyman in serious dramatic form. There is no comedy element though there is much diabolic irony, we are informed. The intention of the dramatist may have been serious; the scenes were laid in Paris in the reign of Louis XIII, when Cardinal Richelieu was supreme in temporal power as well as head of the church; when itinerant showmen stole the children of distinguished families and held them for ransom or service, and when astrologers toyed with the "affaires de coeur" for vast sums or sold death-dealing potions to those ennuied by marriage vows. The intention of the dramatist may have been serious—we are assured in advance notices that it was, that there were no light lines or situations or humor. There were certainly not, at least, intended, but the producer made it anything but serious, anything but tragic. It resolved itself into a monologue by John Northern Hilliard, the only real actor in it, with his finely sustained characterization of the mountebank astrologer, Solomon de Notredame, assisted by some fine minor parts. Dr. Burton opened the show in a courtyard noisy scene as Robiac, an itinerant showman, and his little daughter, Virginia, played admirably and tenderly that role of the stolen child so familiarly loved in a similar plot—"The Bohemian Girl." Except that she had no inflections—a deplorable fault of some of the principals overlooked by the producer—her work was sincere and true. Robiac was all that was desired in the brutal character, and he threw the boy Jehan down and chained him quite as though he were a captive, and sold him for the pile of money offered by the astrologer to get promptly drunk.

Miss Helena Conger, who took the part of Miss Blanche Tolme half an hour before the curtain, owing to Miss Tolme's illness, did a very pretty piece of acting the first night as Diane de Vidoche, heiress of Martinbault. She not only looked patrician in her charming antique costume of the period, but spoke her lines in a patrician voice with patrician accent, and her furtive nervousness at taking the part on such short notice was a great assistance in putting it over. Mrs. Rhoda Johnson, who had been planning and making the costumes for the past six weeks, took the part billed for Miss Conger as the maid, and as these changes were made just before the first curtain, great credit is due both. Another difficult situation fell to John B. Jordan, who played Charles de Vidoche, although suffering from a recent auto accident; he disobeyed his physician and appeared in the cast both nights and while he read his lines much too loud even for the roisterous errant Diane's husband was reputed to be, still he wound up with a deserving death, which assisted toward the title of "High Justice."

C. Sumner Greene appeared as the landlord; unlike the rest of the characters, he looked more a French type. After affecting broken English for a few speeches he lapsed into the vernacular of the native. While Mr. Jordan's part should have had more subtlety read into it, Mr. Greene's held the important position of telling the crux of the story of the stolen key. But it was hardly obvious, due to the coaching, of course. In the first night performance Cornelius Botke, as the valet, seemed to lose his lines as most of the cast did, depending on Miss Conger for prompts. The second night, however, he took a turn for the better and again stood on his own feet. The same was true of James Worthington as Father Bernard. The guard was impossible and after bellowing about the Cardinal's palace could hardly be subdued.

As Cardinal Richelieu, Herbert Heron failed utterly to convince. His makeup was that of an aged prelate and the voice of a patronizing young, very young, secular. This role could have been admirably done by Owen White, whose voice fitted it better than anyone now in Carmel, and who is especially artistic in such characters. In Heron's cross-examination of Diane, it might have been the class in kindergarten. There was nowhere the atmosphere even of a French chapel. It was also deplorable that in a place like Carmel, founded by Catholic influences and filled with them, no slightest custom of a good member of the church was apparent in any of the menials of the cardinal's household, nor was any of the proper business of the play as set in France and the Cardinal's Palace given at any time.

With all allowance for lack of experience, all allowance for lack of space on a small stage, all allowance for exchange of principals at the last moment, and proper business of tragic drama, the lack of atmosphere, illusion, intonation and enunciation, the production became a dead level farce robbed of both its punch and point.

Is it not a crying shame that Carmel, which boasts over ten years of histrionic attempts at the highest achievement in art, and which closes its doors to those who have had experience in Little Theatre productions of national fame, should be made to pay the highest price for such work? Carmel is not provincial. It is composed of cosmopolites used to old world customs, life and language, ancient and modern. Cannot those who are eager to assist, as the discreet French say, at productions to help build the Little Theatre, be given intelligent value for their money? It is time.

San Antonio avenue property owners have repetitioned for street improvem ent work.

Emulating Mr. Nero

The regular monthly meeting night of the Carmel-by-the-Sea trustees, established by ordinance, is the first Tuesday of every month. Should that first Tuesday be a legal holiday, the meeting goes over to the following night.

The foregoing provision is stationary and well known, yet despite this, for the first time since the city was incorporated last Tuesday evening went by without the transaction of any business, owing to the absence of three trustees.

At one period during the evening three trustees—a quorom—were present in the council chamber, but when Trustees Thomas B. B. Reardon and William T. Kibbler were ready to proceed Trustee Helen W. Parkes had left the chamber. A telephone call to Trustee William L. Maxwell brought forth the information from him that he would not be in attendance. Result: No quorom, no meeting.

A legal meeting might have been held on Wednesday night, but unfortunately Reardon and Kibbler failed to adjourn to a specified date.

As the result of a summons from City Clerk Saidee Van Brower, all the trustees, except Perry Newberry, who is in San Jose on private business, appeared at the city hall on Thursday night. They could not hold a legal meeting then because Newberry had not received notice thereof.

On the advise of City Attorney Argyll Campbell a special meeting was called for next Monday evening, at which the regular business of the board will be transacted.

Coming: Stanford Rah Rah Boys

Yes, you bet it's true. The boys are coming. They'll be here on the 23rd of this month for their second annual concert here.

The boys remember the hospitality of the Carmel people last year, and in making the itinerary this year Carmel was the first consideration.

They will again be led by our old friend, Warren D. Allen, and needless to say they make some real music and have a lot of good stunts.

There will be a dance following the concert, and those boys certainly can dance, as many a maid can testify.

There will probably be another picnic at Point Lobos, to which everybody is invited. Details later.

Don't forget—Friday evening, 23rd March. Tickets at Palace drug store, Carmel.

Promoters to Cather at Highlands Inn

Monterey Peninsula Incorporated, the recently formed publicity and promotion organization, is to hold a dutch treat get-together meeting at Highlands Inn next Friday evening. Several speakers will explain the purposes of the organization. Business and professional men are invited to be present. Further information may be had from Ray C. DeYoe.

Matters looking toward the establishment of the Bank of Carmel are moving along satisfactorily. There are still a number of shares of stock available, purchase of which may be negotiated through Barnett Segal.

Pine Cone's Log of Literature & Art

In a letter from Michael Williams, former Carmelite, who is much interested in the proposed publication of a Christian journal, we learn that "the Calvert Associates was formed for the purpose of publishing a secular weekly review of high literary quality to deal with social and economic subjects and all important developments in art, science, philosophy, music and drama from the vantage ground of Catholicity."

A New York dispatch, under date of March 3, will interest local residents:

"One of the interesting examples of western art that has attracted much attention in several exhibitions where it has been shown here is a picture by Miss I. Maynard Curtis, which breathes the spirit of the Pacific.

"Miss Curtis, a couple of years ago, built an artistic bungalow at Carmel-by-the-Sea, and there has done much of her painting since then. It was there that she did the portrait of a California college girl and named it 'When Life Looks Bright.' The picture carries with it the charm of those days after graduation, when indeed 'all looks bright' to the girl entering upon young womanhood."

Twenty-five or thirty years ago drama worth an intelligent person's attention could only be seen in a few of the larger cities. Such entertainment as was provided for the smaller cities and towns was indescribably bad. The motion picture has swept away this discrimination, for the same film that is shown on Broadway in New York is shown on Main street in 10,000 towns. The best that intelligence can ferret out or money buy or ingenuity devise is (theoretically) available for all audiences, large and small.

As every thoughtful observer knows, the motion picture producers have not yet provided the best that can be obtained, or anything like it. In an attempt to find the greatest common denominator of humanity they have hit something frequently resembling zero. But the possibilities are there and some day will be utilized. There has never been such a summons to perfection.

We hear much of Sandburg nowadays. What type of man is he? Here's an estimate view of the man:

He is of medium height, powerful build, strong, square-cut face, and thick iron-grey hair. He looks thoroughly capable of doing all the laborious things he had to do in youth in order to earn his way to a place in the sun where he could construct his astonishingly vigorous verse in plain United States vernacular. He is of Scandinavian extraction, and it is easy to imagine that you see in him traces of the sturdy, close-to-the-soilness of a Scandinavian peasant.

The impression that Sandburg leaves with one is that there is not the slightest affectation back of his sometimes rather amazing man-handling of the king's English, but that he is honestly striving to write American poetry which shall comfort and exalt the souls of his fellow countrymen.

STEINWAY
The Instrument of the Immortals

IN the early days of the modern pianoforte, the Steinway became—and it has always remained—"the Instrument of the Immortals". Liszt, greatest of all pianists, pronounced the Steinway greatest of all pianos. Wagner, Rubinstein, Gounod and their brilliant contemporaries were equally quick to recognize and acclaim its pre-eminence.

Each year since those great beginnings, the Steinway has strengthened and increased its prestige with those who make and those who love great music.

One of the reasons for this is that the Steinway has always been made under the personal direction and the personal ownership of the Steinway family.

All the materials which go into a Steinway are available to the whole world—but the genius which transmutes them into Steinway Tone begins and ends with Steinway.

To make a piano is one thing—to make a piano for the immortals is another.

Paderewski, Hofmann, Rachmaninoff—the Steinway is their chosen instrument just as it was Liszt's.

Is there any wonder that the mere presence of a Steinway in a home is a token of musical authority and distinction?

We shall be happy to help you choose your Steinway.

Daisy and Tilly Will "Do" Europe

Though her ancestors were Dutch and she was born in the Bret Harte mining country, Daisy Bostick is "from Missouri." She has made up her mind to go Holland, and leaves next Tuesday with Tilly Polak, sailing from New York on the 23d of this month.

Daisy had heard of "Dutch treat" and "Dutch cleanser," and she is actually going to find out if these excellent virtures did really originate in the land of the wooden shoe and canal dyke.

The trip away from familiar scenes will do much to assuage her grief over her failure to win in the subscription contest for an automobile. She may tell her troubles to "Exile Bill" at Doorn.

But seriously, this trip will be a wonderful experience for the "Pine Nut." She will have the companionship of one who has traveled extensively in Europe, one who speaks several languages, who knows the places to visit in France, Germany, Italy and Holland—off the beaten track.

Mrs. Bostick will take minute notes of "Europe As Is," and perhaps before her return in May her correspondence will appear in several leading publications.

Poet Frank Swaine, who has been going it alone here for several weeks, has been joined by his wife.

Smooth Sailing at Last

All the barriers, hurdles and fences on the Ocean avenue roadway and intersections have been removed and one can now drive anywhere in Carmel without detouring.

Not so, however, on the sidewalks. In front of quite a number of business places work is under way in the putting down of concrete sidewalks by Sydney Ruthven. Chicken wire fences have been placed around these walks, and occasionally one is compelled to tread the straight and narrow on a single plank.

It was amusing to observe the group of young men in attendance when an old plank sidewalk was being removed. The hope that coin was present was frequently realized, one treasure-seeker picking up $1.80 where the cracks once were. Various other small sums were found.

Pine Cone Gets Donation

There is on display at the Pine Cone office a beautiful branch of pine cones, sent us by B. W. Adams of the United States Forestry Service. The following is from a letter accompanying the gift:

"Remembering your interest in pine cones of all kinds, I am sending you a specimen of a comparatively rare species in California. It is called the 'Knob Cone Pine' or 'Pinus Attenuata.' This specimen came from the Merced river, a little below El Portal.

"As this species grows only on the dry and rocky slopes, it would not thrive in Carmel. A peculiar feature of this variety is that the cones adhere to the tree for as much as 40 or 50 years, and are not known to open except in fires or when exposed to artificial heat."

About one-half of the subscribers necessary to assure the purchase of a first-class piano for Arts and Crafts Hall have signed up. It is expected that the entire list will be completed in the next two week.

The committee having the matter in charge has placed on sale at Cabbages and Kings a charcoal drawing by Francis McComas, which will be sold to the highest bidder, as was the Botke etching.

Local Tearoom Changes Hands

Many improvements have been made in the unique tea room down at the Mission. Both indoor and outdoor parties will be entertained at afternoon teas, luncheons and dinners. A goodly portion of the tea room has been covered with a polished dancing floor. The cuisine is already functioning perfectly and all comers are being served. Formal opening will be announced later.

Arts and Crafts Club

There will be a meeting of the Arts and Crafts club on Monday evening, March 12, at 7:30 o'clock. Definite plans for the new theater are to be shown and discussed, and it is desired that every member of the club will be present upon this occasion. The hall will be heated.

By order of the president.

After a six months' stay in San Francisco, Miss Anita Murray has returned to her studio at Seaside. She will be at home on Saturdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Johnson are spending this week in Los Angeles. They motored down and had as guest passenger Mrs. Walter M. Basham.

Mrs. John B. Rittenhouse gave a four-table Mah Jongg affair at her Pebble Beach home yesterday afternoon. The guest of honor was Lady Barnard of Victoria.

Quite a contingent of Carmel high school pupils and their parents will make the trip to San Jose today to witness tonight's basketball game between Monterey and San Jose.

Business affairs demand the presence of James Worthington in England. He plans to sail from New York in a few weeks, but will return here in season to lend his aid in the summer plays.

The Joseph Blethens' guest for the past week, Mrs. T. J. Van Atta, has departed for her home in Seattle, motoring up to San Francisco with her host and hostess, who will return here tomorrow.

Henry L. Warren, old time Carmelite, after six years residence in Oakland and other places, has returned to this city with his family to make his home. He will be employed by M. J. Murphy.

The local Red Cross organization, so Mrs. B. O. Warren announces, has taken over the Near East relief work here, and is asking for donations of money and clothing, same to be left at the Carmel Development Company office.

Looking well and prosperous and full of enthusiasm for the theatrical prospects of the Missiontown players in San Jose, Owen White was in Carmel this week. They have been booked for four little theater production at the Hotel Vendome.

Another supper dance is announed at Pine Inn. The event is to take place on March 17. Reservations have been made by eighteen members of an Oakland dancing club and a large party from San Francisco. Tables should be secured early.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Volume of Poems by Author of Yolanda of Cyprus

Many a year, now, has Cale Young Rice, on the appearance of a new volume, been hailed as one of the most distinguished of American poets; his every work has received high encomiums. He is one American poet whom English as well as American critics acknowledge. His new volume, "Mihrima," is now being noticed by the press with much enthusiasm.

We select a review from the Rochester "Post Express," because it gives a description of the leading poem, a poetic drama which gives the volume its name, "Mihrima":

"The new volume of poems by Cale Young Rice presents him to us in the maturity of his genius. Mr. Rice is indeed a world-poet. His horizon is not contracted. It is as wide as that of Goethe or Shelley. An American, he can say:

"'All lands my country are, the world my home,' for the lover of humanity is at home everywhere.

"'Mihrima,' the beautiful play which is the principal feature in the volume, gives us an intensely dramatic story of a woman married to the son of an astrologer claiming descent from the Magi, but bound by a previous union to a dissolute nobleman who has basely deserted her after causing her terrible unhappiness. The scene of the play is Jerusalem, close to the holy sepulcher. Murzinos, Mihrima's first husband, finds her and appeals to her to come back to him. Her proud mother, Alexia, urges her to spurn Murzinos. Her second husband, Phranzes, suddenly appears, and listens with horror to Mihrima's story. But Mihrima, carried away by religious ecstacy, seizes a crucifix and holds with her hands the bleeding hands of Christ. When she lays down the crucifix her own palms are bleeding.

"The mysticism of the drama is almost mediaeval. Mr. Rice evidently means to portray . . . Mihrima the indefilable chastity of a woman's soul."

Zane Gray Remains True to Environment

Zane Grey's "Desert Gold" is a prose epic of the West, written by a man with the pioneer spirit and who is in love with his subject. It renews pride in one's Americanism and thrills the soul in its depiction of true courage and the generosity which invariably accompanies that quality. It is not a story of the past, but of present days, and presents the character of those settlers who have withstood uprisings and bandit raids along the wildest part of the Mexican border. Conspicuous in its more heroic phases is the part taken by rangers, U. S. soldiers and cowboys. Not a story for men alone or entirely concerned with men's doings; for it presents some of the fine types of woman who are helping their husbands, fathers and brothers, and sharing the perils and hardships of an arduous, in many cases poorly requited, life. Its pure and inspiring love story is one of its strongest recommendations, and here we see the effect of a handsome, spirited, brave, big-hearted Western girl in reshaping the character of a young Easterner, who had been somewhat contaminated by college life, parental indulgence and too much money. Through love of the girl and the influence of experience, in which many times he was face to face with death, he became a man worthy to represent the best and bravest of the section.

The contract has been let for the eight-room Hough residence at Pebble Beach. Fred Ruhl and John Taufner have the work in hand.

Henry Baker, president of the Northern Hotel Association, was here last week and, with his wife, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jordan.

City Trustee Helen W. Parkes is home again. She recently spent a week with friends in San Francisco. She attended the opera on several occasions.

After spending over a month in Tonopah, Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Kain have returned to Carmel. Mr. Kain has mining interests in the Nevada town.

For the next few months Mrs. Ludovica Lawson will make her home with her son, Eric, near St. Helena, Napa county, where the young man has a large acreage in fruit.

An addition to the Jackson property at Dolores street and Seventh avenue, recently acquired by Mrs. Constance Lowell, is a chalk-rock coping. It is being built by L. P. Narvaez.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce takes place next Thursday evening at the city hall. Important matters will be discussed, calling for a full attendance.

By defeating Tamalpais Hi last Saturday night, the Monterey Hi basketball team is that much nearer the state championship. Tonight our boys meet San Jose in the first semi-final contest.

Next Monday Carmel voters will trek to the polls at the city hall to express their choice of three members of the Carmel Sanitary District Board. The polls will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Welcome to our city. Captain John W. Ward and wife of Berkeley have come to Carmel to make their home. They are building on Scenic road, between Thirteenth and Santa Lucia avenues.

At least for a month or two Thomas S. Parkhurst, recently returned from the East, will make his home in Carmel instead of at the Highlands. He and his sister, Mrs. Chamberlin, have taken the Stark cottage on Casanova street.

Thomas Bickle received a letter last Sunday conveying the news that his mother had passed away in Cornwall, England. She was 78 years old. She had been in good health up to within a day of her death. One other son survives her.

Mrs. Vernon L. Kellogg and her daughter, Jean, have taken a cottage here. They may be joined shortly by Professor Kellogg, who is now in Washington, D. C. Upon his arrival they may build on their property at Carmel Highlands.

Sunset School District will elect a new trustee on the last Friday of this month. After nine years of faithful service on the board, Miss Annie C. Edmonds has declared to be a candidate. But one name has so far been mentioned for the position, that of Miss Ruth Huntington, who is experienced in school work and administration.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blethen on Friday evening of last week, the occasion being the first anniversary of their marriage. In the midst of a good time regrets were expressed that the Blethens are leaving Carmel next month to make their home in San Francisco. However, they are planning to purchase a week-end cottage here.

Card of Thanks

The action of the Carmel shopkeepers in closing their places of business out of respect to the memory of Mrs. A. D. Signor, during the funeral hour, was a tribute highly appreciated by her relatives, and we desire to express our sincere thanks for said action.

Stanford Glee Club in Second Annual Concert on Friday

This will be the last local press announcement for next Friday night's concert by the Stanford Glee Club at Arts and Crafts hall.

Impresario Hal Bragg announces that the boys will be here on Friday and Saturday nights and asks for volunteer hostesses to entertain them during their stay, following the precedent established last year, and judging from last season's personnel there should be no doubt of accommodations being oversubscribed. Send requisitions for boys to the Pine Cone. Following the concert the club will furnish music and themselves for a big dance.

On Sunday it is planned to hold a picnic at Point Lobos' to which the whole town is invited. Bring lunch; Tamales and coffee will be served free. Weather governs, of course.

Concert tickets at the Palace Drug Store.

Campfire Girls to Have Organization

Today will live long in the memories of the girls in Carmel. Today is the birthday of the national organization of Campfire Girls. It will also be the birthday of the Campfire Girls in Carmel. All week they have been bubbling over with excitement at the thought of having an organization all their very own.

There will be four groups—namely, one for girls of 8 and 9, one for girls of 10 and 11, one for girls of 12, 13 and 14, and one for the older high school girls.

Each will have a campfire guardian to direct the work and play of the group and to bestow the honor beads which determine the three ranks of Woodgatherer, Firemaker and Torchbearer.

The girls will design and make their own ceremonial gowns of khaki with brown leather fringe.

The girls under twelve will be known as Bluebirds until they attain the age required for Campfire girls, but they will be busy training for their future duties.

Campfire girls everywhere are preparing for a larger, richer womanhood along lines of civic, domestic, artistic and spiritual endeavor. The best in each girl is brought out and she makes lasting friendships, while at the same time she learns to love outdoor life and exercise.

There will be a week of camping for those who can go in summer.

The meeting for today will take the form of a campfire picnic, and all girls are invited. Bring your own lunch and come to the Forest Theater at 2 o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon.

Sage of Idlewild Wins Out in Partition Suit

Old "Cap" Charles W. Howland retains his valuable Idlewild camp site, down the coast twenty-four miles from Carmel, by decision of Judge J. A. Bardin, before whom the case was heard.

The matter involved the partition of 320 acres of land, brought about by the suit of John Brown and wife.

Permission was also granted to maintain gates on the right-of-way.

Plans for New Theater are Adopted by Arts and Crafts

About twenty members of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts were present at the monthly meeting last Monday night and listened to reports of the president, Mrs. J. W. Hand, and various committees.

Dr. H. E. Spoehr stated that about $190 was taken at the last two performances for the Little Theater building, and deplored that the attendance was so small each night, especially the second, due to lack of community spirit of co-operation. He was pessimistic as to the probability of being able to pay for the erection and sustaining of the Little Theater. Others maintained that attendance would be greater when adequate heating facilities were forthcoming and the health of the audience assured.

J. W. Hand reported that bills were still coming in on account of the recent plays, but he thought there would be a slight balance for the theater. He added that in the early days when Mrs. Hand and he put on plays and charged twenty-five and fifty cents they had a goodly balance towards the club's funds.

Mrs. Hand gave a short talk on the new Knabe piano project, and the encouraging results of Thomas V. Cator's campaign to raise funds. The piano was on view—the instrument used at the recent Schnabel concert. It is the intention to reserve this beautiful $1500 instrument for concert work and have another piano for dances and other uses.

Considerable time was taken up with the building plans for the new theater, and those drawn by M. J. Murphy were finally accepted. The price for the simple wooden building, without lighting, heating or seats, was estimated at about $5450. To complete the work for occupancy it would take $7000, which the club hopes to raise easily, as $5000 has already been offered by members as a loan.

Miss Elizabeth White and Miss Louise Conger were elected as delegates to attend the district convention of the Federation of Clubs at San Jose on April 12. Miss DeNeale Morgan and Mrs. Kusey Kluegel were selected as alternates. John B. Jordan kindly offered to send them to the city in his car.

A nominating committee was elected to draw up a slate for the next meeting as follows: Miss Helena Conger, Mrs. Susan Porter, Dr. H. A. Spoehr, Herbert Heron and George Seideneck. It was emphatically stated by J. W. Hand that Mrs. Hand, who has been president for many years and upon whom has rested a great deal of the responsibility of making the club what it is today, would not be a candidate for the office again. Upon her retirement something really handsome should be done by the club in recognition of her invaluable services as an executive, producer and performer, not to mention her charm of character, and the manner in which she has presided as hostess for the innumerable affairs of the club. It will be difficult to find a successor.

After a great deal of discussion as to means of entertainment for visiting artists and other distinguished guests and of arousing a spirit of co operation in community movements for the social and artistic life of the colony, the club adjourned.

Fate of Serra Play Is Still Undecided

The statement, published recently in a Monterey paper, to the effect that the Serra play would not be produced in Carmel this year, is not correct.

Garnet Holme was here last Sunday, and when shown the statement disclaimed knowledge that the play would not be put on this summer.

It is true that the Forest theater directorate has canceled the dates—July 17 and 18—originally assigned and asked by Holme's local committee, but as yet the project has not been abandoned.

It may be that a later date to use the Forest Theater will be asked for, or that the play may be given elsewhere.

The matter is only in abeyance, not abandoned.

Carmel Realtors Adopt Multiple Listing Plan

Prospective real estate buyers and sellers, doing business with any of the five realtors in this city will have greatly increased service through the action of the Carmel Realty Board in putting into operation the system known as the "multiple listing" plan. The scheme provides that whenever a piece of property is placed in the hands of a realtor, that property is immediately listed with the other realtors, thus affording the services of five firms instead of one, at no additional expense.

Ad Men Will Meet in Carmel

Our new Ocean avenue was just about completed in time, for on April 13th, 14th and 15th there will be held here the convention of the California Advertising Service Association, having a large membership in all sections of the state.

The meetings will be held at Pine Inn, where the delegates will be housed. On the day prior to the convention's opening the directors of the organization will meet to map out their program of business, and on Saturday evening a banquet and dance will be given in honor of the visitors by John B. Jordan.

This body was to have met here last year, but for various business reasons was obliged to convene in San Jose.

This is the first of such gatherings as Carmel can handle, and the local chamber of commerce is encouraging other organizations to come here.

Gives Dinner in New Grill Banquet Room

The Monterey Grill banquet room, recently altered and enlarged by Dewitt Appleton, was on Thursday evening given over to a complimentary dinner by Mr. Appleton himself to Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Dormody, recently located on Monterey Peninsula. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bickle and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Overstreet of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Prince and Charles Froat of Monterey.

Carpenter Street Vacation Ordered by City Trustees

"What a place of enchantment and mystery it is—the little village in the forest by the edge of the sea," writes Annie Laurie, having in mind our own Carmel.

And Carmel remains just as beautiful, just as alluring, even though the city trustees on Monday evening last, at a special meeting, acceded to Paul Flanders' request that a portion of Carpenter street, in the southeastern part of the city, be abolished. City Attorney Argyll Campbell was instructed to prepare papers in condemnation proceedings to acquire rights of way for new road connections, in which matter the city will be protected by a $25,000 bond put up by Flanders. The resolution of intention was passed by a two to one vote, Trustee Maxwell voting "no," and Trustee Newberry being absent.

At this meeting also a resolution was unanimously adopted which has for its object the grading of an 18-foot roadway on Eleventh avenue, between Junipero and Viscaino streets. The expense will be borne by the Carnegie Institute, Frederick R. Bechdolt, Calvin C. Hogle and Paul Flanders.

It was also ordered that one block on San Antonio street, between Ocean avenue and Seventh street, be improved with an 18 foot roadway.

The march of civic progress, the rapid growth of trees and shrubbery and the building of homes have resulted in the disappearance of the picturesque little path that used to lead down to Scenic Drive and the bath house. A committee consisting of City Engineer H. D. Severance, Dr. A. E. Burton and C. Sumner Greene was appointed to make a survey for a new roadway.

There is some difference of opinion between the planning commission and the chamber of commerce as to what should be done with the center strip on Ocean avenue. A compromise will probably be effected and the result reported to the trustees.

Personal liability insurance, with the premium $70 a year, was taken out on the recently acquired fire engine. The board also decided to move the fire house from its present location in the business district to North Carmel, a location having been tendered on the property of the Forest Hill School. The small chemical engine will be housed there.

The chicken ordinance passage went over to the next meeting.

Knabe Grand Selected

The committee in charge of the purchase of a piano for the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts, of which T. V. Cator is chairman, has made its choice of an instrument. It will be a Knabe concert grand. Many subscribers to the fund were in favor of a Steinway, but have foregone their choice in order that a piano may be obtained. Subscriptions continue to come in.

Off for Holland

Mrs. Daisy F. Bostick and Miss Tillie Polak got away on their long journey to Amsterdam and way stations last Tuesday morning. The two or three days prior to departure were strenuous ones. Passports had to be arranged for, income tax returns rendered, power of attorney arranged, etc. They may not be home until the middle of June.

For the next few months Mrs. Ludovica Lawson will make her home with her son, Eric, near St. Helena, Napa county, where the young man has a large acreage in fruit.

An addition to the Jackson property at Dolores street and Seventh avenue, recently acquired by Mrs. Constance Lowell, is a chalk-rock coping. It is being built by L. P. Narvaez.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce takes place next Thursday evening at the city hall. Important matters will be discussed, calling for a full attendance.

By defeating Tamalpais Hi last Saturday night, the Monterey Hi basketball team is that much nearer the state championship. Tonight our boys meet San Jose in the first semi-final contest.

Next Monday Carmel voters will trek to the polls at the city hall to express their choice of three members of the Carmel Sanitary District Board. The polls will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Welcome to our city. Captain John W. Ward and wife of Berkeley have come to Carmel to make their home. They are building on Scenic road, between Thirteenth and Santa Lucia avenues.

At least for a month or two Thomas S. Parkhurst, recently returned from the East, will make his home in Carmel instead of at the Highlands. He and his sister, Mrs. Chamberlin, have taken the Stark cottage on Casanova street.

Thomas Bickle received a letter last Sunday conveying the news that his mother had passed away in Cornwall, England. She was 78 years old. She had been in good health up to within a day of her death. One other son survives her.

Mrs. Vernon L. Kellogg and her daughter, Jean, have taken a cottage here. They may be joined shortly by Professor Kellogg, who is now in Washington, D. C. Upon his arrival they may build on their property at Carmel Highlands.

Sunset School District will elect a new trustee on the last Friday of this month. After nine years of faithful service on the board, Miss Annie C. Edmonds has declared to be a candidate. But one name has so far been mentioned for the position, that of Miss Ruth Huntington, who is experienced in school work and administration.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blethen on Friday evening of last week, the occasion being the first anniversary of their marriage. In the midst of a good time regrets were expressed that the Blethens are leaving Carmel next month to make their home in San Francisco. However, they are planning to purchase a week-end cottage here.

Card of Thanks

The action of the Carmel shopkeepers in closing their places of business out of respect to the memory of Mrs. A. D. Signor, during the funeral hour, was a tribute highly appreciated by her relatives, and we desire to express our sincere thanks for said action.
